In two West Coast speeches, Acheson outlined a seven-point program to span major differences between the East and the West.

His speeches, though delivered to the American people, were really directed at the Kremlin. They must be taken as an answer to recent kites flown by Russian leaders who said communism and capitalism can live peacefully in one world.

Acheson laid American terms on the line in tough, blunt language. The seven points he offered the Russians, if accepted, would mean a communist surrender without fighting a shot. In effect he asked the communists to stop being communists.

BOSTON, (AP) — The United States Smelting, Refining and Mining company reported yesterday at its quarterly directors' meeting an estimated $92,328 loss for the first two months of this year, compared with consolidated net profit of $341,657 in the same two months of 1949.

The estimated loss was "accounted for principally by the continued low prices for lead and zinc, work stoppages at the coal property which also adversely affected the railway operations, and the seasonal shutdown of the Alaskan gold properties."

United States Smelting had a consolidated net profit of $2,438,782 in 1949—equal to $1.51 per common share, and profit of $4,609,902 in 1948, equal to $5.62 per share.
